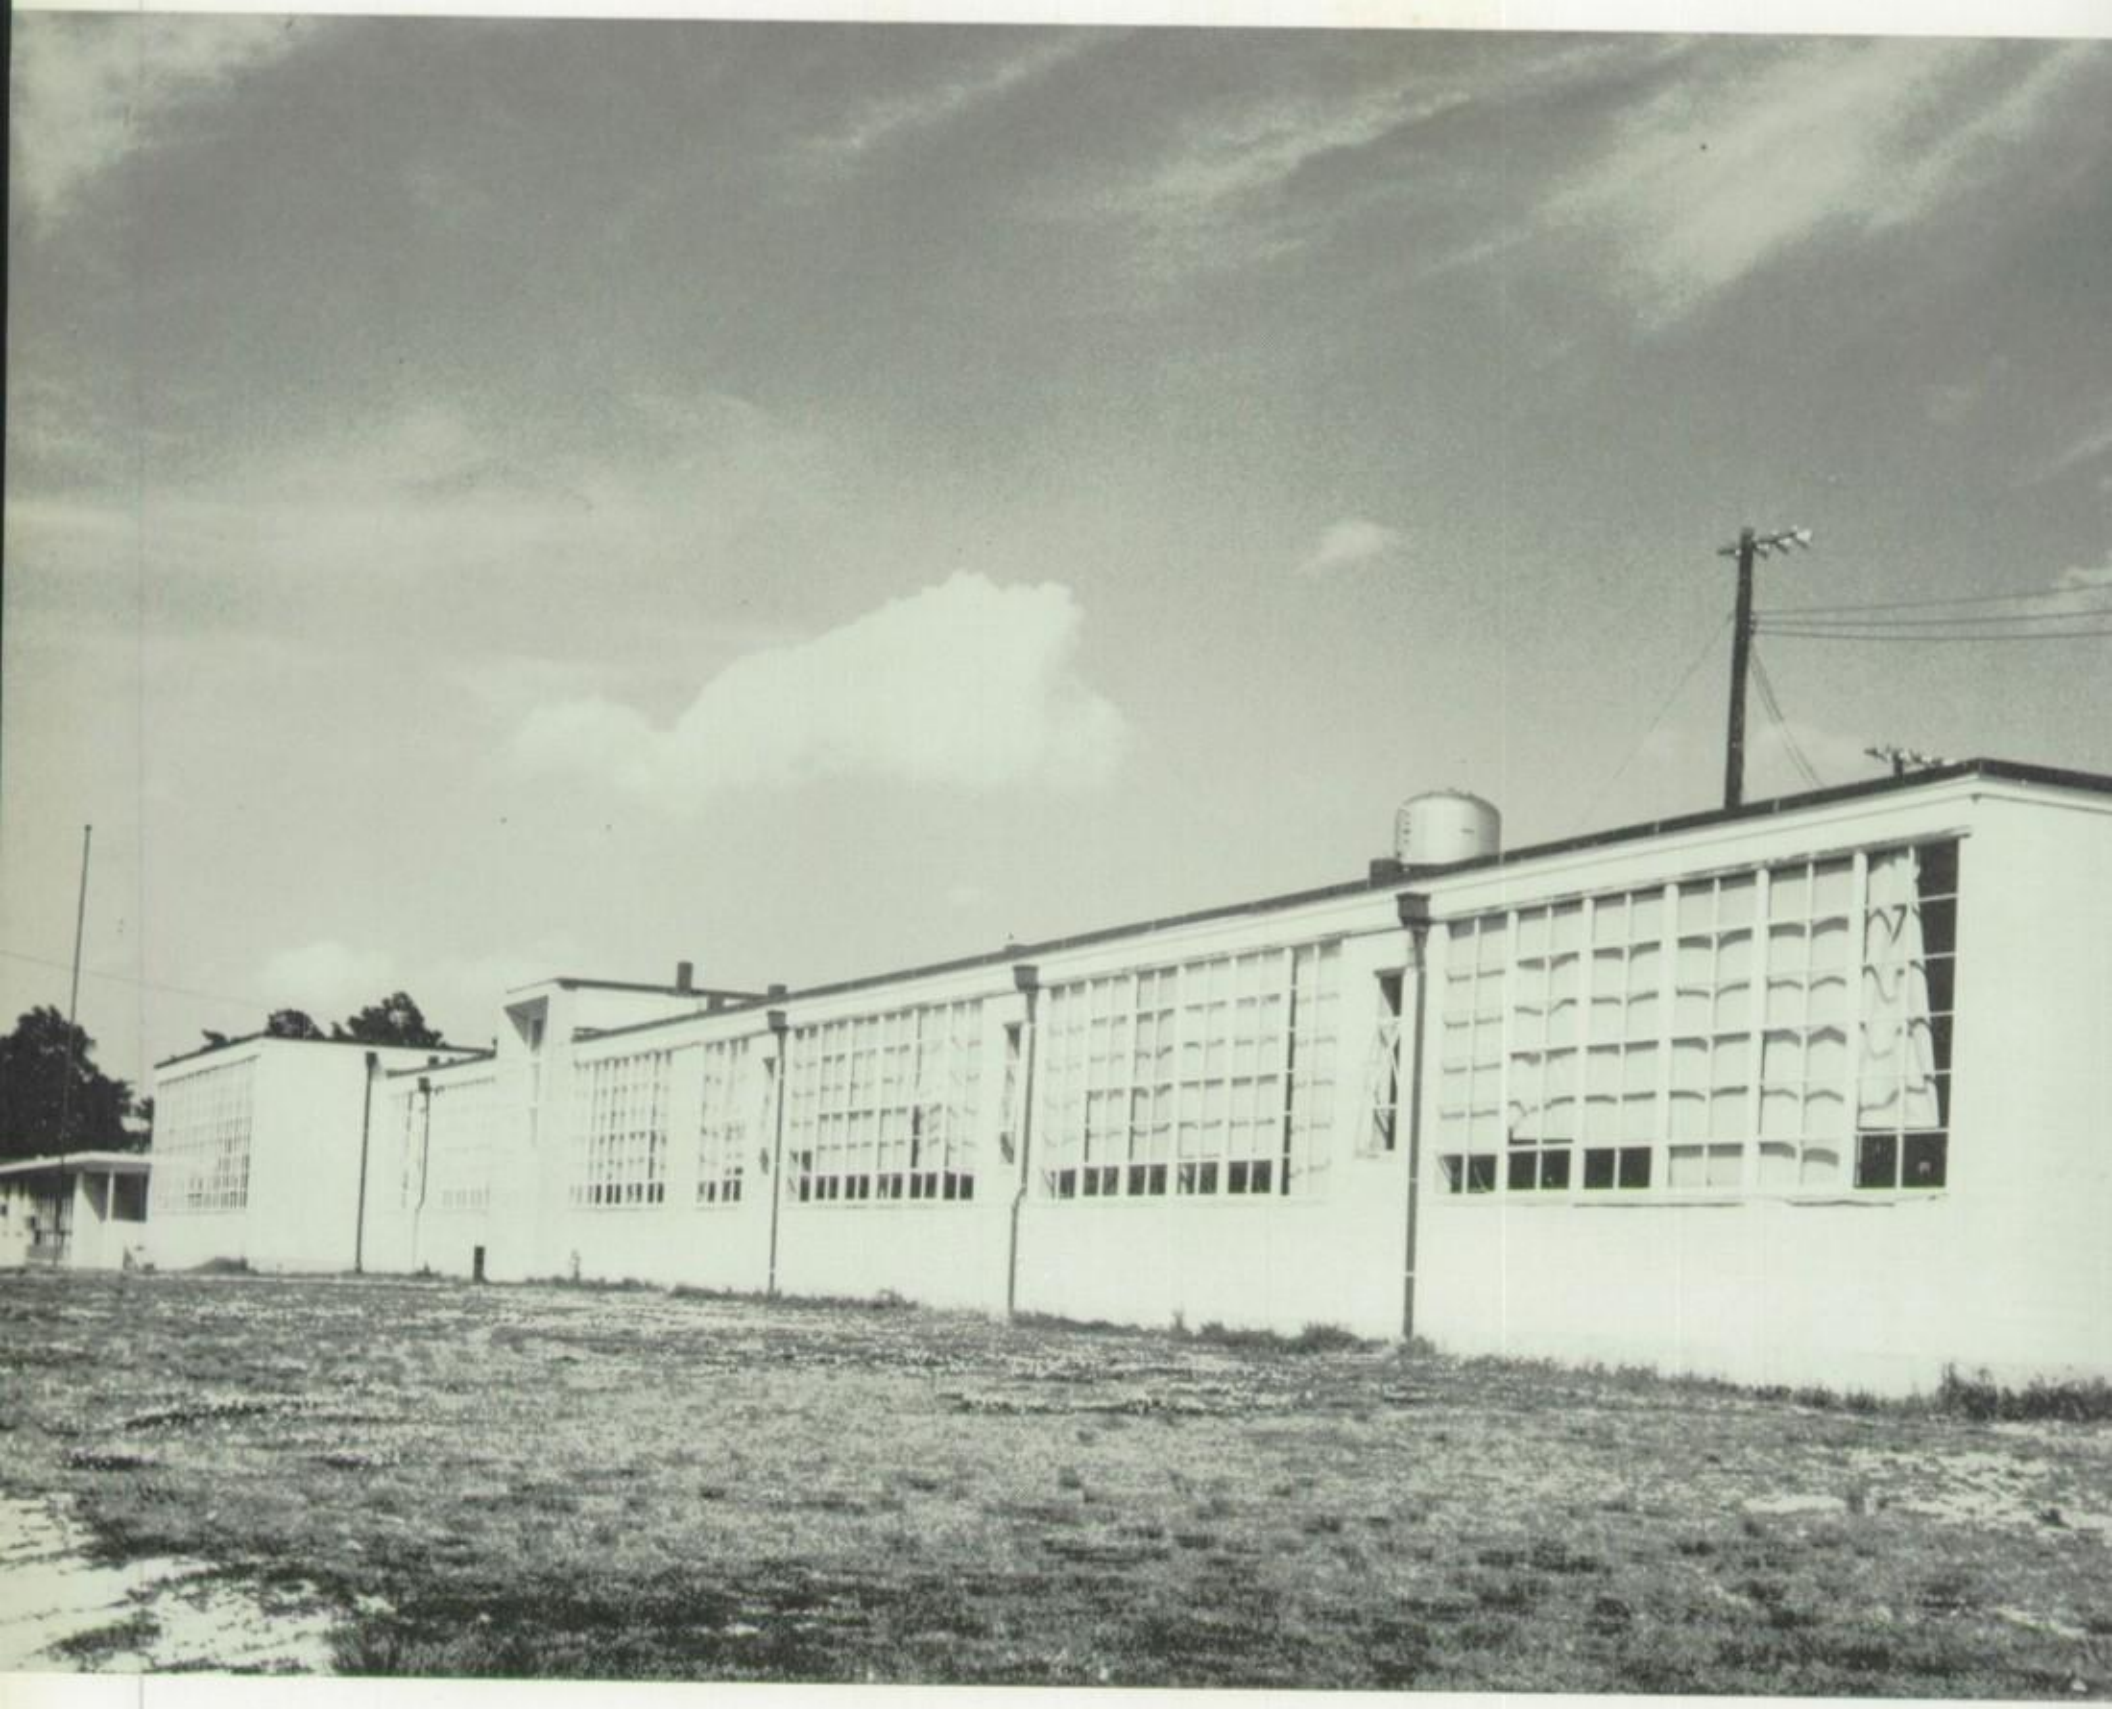
Proudly Stands Our Alma Mater



The 1962 EAGLE is a lasting tribute to our Alma Mater. The aim of the Eagle Staff in the publication of this annual is to present a story in pictures of our work, our play, our beliefs - the story of a school dedicated to an intangible ideal that tomorrow's achievements are built on today's accomplishments.

All Hail — Olive Branch High!

As the end of school nears, we naturally look back fondly on our pleasant associations in Olive Branch School. We realize that all of our teachers have had a hand in shaping and molding our lives--but none more than you,

MRS. LANGSTON, to whom the staff of the 1962 EAGLE dedicates this yearbook.

Your dignity and innate charm are a constant inspiration to Olive Branch students. Recognizing that you require the best behavior and work from all of us, we stretch ourselves to meet your standards, thereby coming to feel a sense of self-satisfaction and a true affection for you.

While your competence would in itself insure the success of any project, you have allowed the annual staff to make decisions, have given us confidence in our own individual worth, and have gone serenely about helping us prove ourselves and the wisdom of our choices. By example, you have taught us that a fair, systematic approach to any problem leads toward success.

This dedication of the 1962 EAGLE is an expression of our appreciation, admiration, and love.

HANDS

We hear and sometimes use many expressions about the hands. We hear "hands across the sea," "hands across the table," "hands under the table," and "hands behind the back." We hear "open hands," "clenched hands," "good hands," and "helping hands."

We hear some of the expressions with trepidation. We are suspicious when we hear "hands behind the back." They speak of dishonesty and dishonor. "Hands under the table" indicate wrong and vicious deeds done secretly. "Clenched hands" make us think of violence and hurt.

We hear other expressions about hands which brings us joy, a feeling of satisfaction, and a feeling of security. "Hands across the table" brings to us thoughts of romance and love. "Good hands" tells of dexterity, efficiency, and greatness.

"Helping hands" brings us security, love, understanding, freedom from want, and freedom from fear.

Which will be our hands?
